GOALS FOR NEWCASTLE.

A member of Parliament thinks the West should use Nova Scotia coal.

He apparently has never been West.

PRECEDENCE.

The Georgian Bay canal is an allanging project, but allurement cost money, and this particular one will get away with a lot of it. At present the need for the canal is not very pressing and Canada has some large undertakings under way which are better finished before it is taken in hand. The G. T. P. and H. B. R. will bring the outcrop into proposition to the western port and use its breathing time to consider the canal proposal. That it will be built one day is quite certain and the day may not be so very far distant. The child advocates of immediate construction are not Westerners, but people living in the country to be traversed by the canal.

THE FIGURES.

Hon. Geo. P. Graham gave Parliament the other day the estimated cost of the Hudson Bay railway. Two routes are proposed, one to Churchill and the other to Nelson. The figures for the Churchill route are: 100 Shops and accessories, $1,135,599
Port work 7,757,152
Total $8,892,751

Nelson route—
Railway construction, $3,854,800
Shops and accessories, $744,000
Port work 6,000,000

The Churchill line from the coast to 571 miles long. From these figures and speaking approximately, $20,000, per mile is considered necessary to build the road, equip it with the shops and the hardware for the line.

For building the road and providing the shops and accessories the cost figures out approximately at something like $30,000 per mile.

OUTCROPPING TORVISM.

Mr. McKinnon thinks that the Government should not spend $11,000, 000 on naval service without first asking directly for the opinion of the people, but he declines in the same resolution that Parliament should turn over $20,000,000 to the British army without asking the people any question about it.

These are peculiar notions to be advanced by a Canadian leader in this age of the world. The first proposal that representative government be abolished, the second that representative government be abandoned. The first declares that the representatives of the people have no right to represent them, the second that they have the right to allow parties not responsible to the people to spend the people's money. The first declares that Parliament has no authority to spend the people's money without asking the people the second that Parliament has the right to place any sum at the disposal of the people, and in any sense, way or degree responsible to the people or answerable to them. On the face of it the two notions are incompatible. They have, however, one thing in common; both are subversive of the system of Parliamentary government as developed in this and the other lands.

Both, too, are outcroppings of the best-kept Toryism which ever crept into the present Opposition. The dis-credits the authority of Parliament to order money spent under its order and the other, by its own responsible to the people every dollar, calls the power of Parliament to allow public money to be spent by men whose conduct it cannot regulate and whose conduct it cannot call into question.
The representatives of the people, he says, in effect, have no right to spend the people's money without asking the people for explicit permission, but he wants, they want every right to hand over this money to someone else to spend, someone not responsible either to them or to the people they are elected to represent. The popular representatives, he says, in effect, are divorced from making an expenditure unless they have received clear direction from the people to make that particular expenditure; but they are altogether qualified to allow other parties to make a much larger expenditure, parties whose course they cannot direct and whose accounts they cannot examine.

This is the old basic principle of Toryism over again; that the people's representatives have not the full and absolute control of the public funds, but only the right to place these at the disposal of some authority created without public consent and not answerable to the public representatives. It is the old idea of the divine right of kings in a new form, only the kings in this case are the Almighty Lords and have never been crowned. It is the same idea which underlies lordism and autocracy everywhere, the idea that someone other than the people's representatives ought really to do the ruling. Toryism is founded on the notion that there are—or should be—two parties in the state; one of which who need to be ruled, and some other person or body whose business it is to rule them, quite regardless of course whether the ruling is according to the people's liking or not. Mr. Borden's allegiance to this notion has been shown in his management of his party.

He has assumed the mantle of a monarch alike in power, supreme in authority, fully clothed in full to rule up and pull down.

The delivery between Tordell and Viking took place on Feb. 16th as scheduled. The cold weather was responsible for the crossing somewhat smaller than anticipated but those who braved the cold air were very much gratified to see a very good brand of horses from the town of the zone along the R.R. The day was fine and the Edison school, as the Dungan school is closed for the winter months.

Mr. John Stoddard and daughter are on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Heath.
Mr. Heath was on his way to the second prize for an essay on the Canadian winter, offered by the Montreal central committee. This prize is a large cup-glass vase, given by Messrs. Henry Morgan & Co. It is expressed by them to Mr. Best.
It is not yet to hand.

Mr. Westgate is getting out lumber for his home, which he intends to begin to build very shortly.

The favorable weather is facilitating the getting out of lumber this winter.

Zero has not often been a feature of the weather since the year began, although the last few mornings have been under zero, from 20 to 30 degrees. The bright sunshine of the daytime, however, makes out-door sports very pleasant.

FORGE

Last Great Metropolis
of North America

Let us recapitulate a few of the conditions in regard to Port George which will make it a city of the future.

Port George is located at the geographical center of British Columbia—it lies equidistant to the north and south of the continent.

Port George is on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, half way between Edmonton and Prince Rupert.

The situation of Port George is such that it will be the largest city on the Grand Trunk Pacific between Edmonton and Prince Rupert.

Port George is on the route that will open up the Peace River country and the terminus of the railway for which a charter has just been granted at Ottawa from Edmonton through the Peace River Pass.

Port George is the terminus or on the line of six other lines of Railway building or projected.

Port George commands the river navigation of Central British Columbia; it is the point where the Nechaco with its tributaries meet the Fraser.

Port George is headquarters for steamboats navigating one thousand miles of waterways at the present time.

Port George is the centre and distributing point for Central British Columbia today; and its central geographical location and strategic position is such that it will continue to be the chief commercial place of Central British Columbia for all time.

Central British Columbia is sufficiently large to support a city of 100,000 inhabitants. It is larger in area and richer in resources than Washington and Oregon together.

But there is destined to be one predominant place in the future of British Columbia, and that place will be Port George. It is the natural resources of Central British Columbia and the natural resources of Central British Columbia, and all the lesser cities and towns will be tributary to it.

There were ladies' suits, coats and kimonos, also military from New York; shirts for men; English wash goods, towels and sheets; men's hats, men's overcoats—indeed there was seemingly something for every part of the store.

This stream of merchandise is still flowing in, and notification of new shipments received daily.

Stocks here are never complete, because they are ever new.

Continuance Sale of all Men's Suits

Values to $30.00 - for $20.85

Come and make yourself at home in the men's clothing section. We want to put you to buy—just examine the 1-2 critically. If the suits don't impress you we won't try any smart salesmanship tricks on you to induce you to buy something you don't want and later be sorry for it.

No, it is one of the secrets of our success that the goods sold themselves. The values are impressive; the styles are those you want; the quality, as far as we can judge, is one that won't disappoint. These are the selling points we feature.
